To Whom It May Concern:

I would hire Ben Brock in a minute and recommend him without any reservations. He's an outstanding individual with ability to contribute to the bottom line in many areas from leadership to technology. Ben worked for me directly at two different firms, first from January 2000 to July 2000 and then from April 2001 to January 2006.

Ben is consistently effective in his job. Ben tackles all projects with zeal, builds consensus among all stakeholders and brings a strong commitment to get results to meet his high standards.

Ben worked for me at a start-up and was key contributor in the rave reviews we received for our website. In fact, we won an award for our site, quite an accomplishment for technical team of seven people as compared to many larger financial institutions.

Ben is unique individual who easily communicates with both technical and non-technical team members building a fantastic rapport with all colleagues. He is willing to pitch in, mentor and help others, and just plain get stuff done when needed.

I highly recommend Ben for employment. He is an effective contributor and a team player. He would make a great asset to any organization.

Sincerely,
